AMERICAN ENAMEL CO'S
PATENT WROUGHT IRON
Enameled WATER PIPE.
This pipe is enameled under great heat, both inside and out, which gives it a hard jet gloss surface and preserves it from rust or corrosion. S. Dana Hayes, State Assayer and Chemist for the State of Massachusetts says: "I commenced the investigation with some doubts about your Enameled Pipe, but the severe tests which I have employed prove that it is perfectly harmless, and possesses great durability, these being the properties of most importance in water pipes."
All sizes of this and plain pipe and fittings constantly on hand, and for sale at lowest market prices.

THE ADVISORY COUNCIL.

VIEWS OF EX-GOVERNOR DINGLEY.

The Boston Journal says: "From his position as Assistant Moderator of the Brooklyn Advisory Council and member of the special committee for summing up the action of the body, as well as from his known candor and sound judgment, the views of ex-Gov. Dingley of Maine are entitled to peculiar weight." His views are expressed in the Lewiston Journal, as follows:

In respect to the case of Mr. Beecher, the Council while expressing regret that the course provided in Matt. xviii was not adopted at the beginning, says that so far as can be seen the church investigated the scandal through a competent committee as thoroughly as possible at the time; that the thoroughness of the investigation was made manifest by the fact that the court after a searching trial of six months found no important evidence additional to that obtained by the church committee, and that the council sees no reason to question the unanimous decision of a very large church that the pastor is innocent.

In view, however, of the fact that some excellent persons think that there is important evidence not yet brought out, and for the satisfaction of other churches, the council advise Plymouth Church to accept and empower a commission nominated by the council, to inquire into alleged new evidence, in case any responsible person shall come forward within sixty days and make charges against Mr. Beecher, with distinct specifications and proof. Prof. Dwight of Yale College, Dr. Wellman of Malden Mass., and Hon. B. R. Wood of Albany, N. Y., are authorized to appoint this commission, to consist of five members, out of the following gentlemen named by the council, viz: Ex-Pres. Hopkins of Williams College, Ex-Senator Foster of Ct., Prof. Seelye of Amherst College, Judge Shipman of Hartford, Ct., Ex-Gov. Washburn of Mass., Ex-Gov. Chamberlain of Maine, Judge Brinkerhoff of Ohio, Pres. Angell of Michigan University, Alpheus Hardy of Boston, Henry P. Haven of Ct., A. C. Barstow of Providence, R. I., and eight other gentlemen of like character.

The result was finally reached by the council without a dissenting vote. On nearly all the important points there was substantial unanimity from the beginning. Many of the rumors of disagreements and heated discussions in private sessions, were either entirely incorrect or grossly exaggerated, and this was the case particularly with reported declarations of Rev. Dr. Bacon. It is but justice to him to say that he declared in council that he fully believed Mr. Beecher to be innocent. Many members of the council made similar declarations, admitting at the same time that they had grave doubts of this when they went to Brooklyn. Rev. S. C. Fessenden of Connecticut, formerly of Maine, said he went to Brooklyn almost convinced of Beecher's guilt, but he should return home thoroughly satisfied of his innocence. A careful canvass showed that every member of the council returned with this view, although a large number went to Brooklyn with more or less doubt.

The general belief is that there is no evidence against Mr. Beecher which has not been made public, and that the few facts not generally known (nearly all of which were inquired into by individual members of the council) bear more in his favor than against him. There are many rumors afloat, but none of them, so far as followed, have any basis of truth. To illustrate the character of gossip which is allowed to influence some minds, it may be mentioned that one day the moderator of the council received a letter from a person saying that he had evidence in his possession which would criminate Mr. Beecher. Inquiry was made, the person who wrote the letter found, and the whole story was found to be baseless. So far as can be learned, all the stories afloat are equally false. It is believed that the able counsel for Tilton brought out at the trial every piece of evidence that can bear against Beecher. The universal conviction even among enemies of Beecher, is that Bowen has no evidence against him. Few expect that any one, having any new evidence, will come forward to make charges before the commission.

AMERICAN GOODS ABROAD.

The sale of American goods in England is one of the most significant indications that it is within the power of the manufacturers in this country to compete successfully with English manufacturers. If the manufacturers of Fall River and Lewiston can sell goods at a profit in Manchester, England, they can most certainly secure in other foreign markets a large portion of the trade which was lost during the war. A recent writer thus presents some of the features of this trade:

"For many years before the war American cotton goods were used largely in China. The high prices of cotton and labor during and since the war have, until a very recent period, lost us that market. Since 1860 the English manufacturers, by imitations of American trade-marks, and the liberal use of gypsum, paste and starch, have done a large and thriving business in supplying China with cotton goods. In 1871 there was imported into that country the enormous quantity of 8,500,000 pieces of shirtings, drills and jeans, nearly all of which were from England.

But last year the old standard makes of American cotton goods reappeared in China, and in spite of imitation trade-marks and other devices of Manchester, a quotable difference in price per piece was at once made as between English and American cottons, fully equal to 25 to 35 per cent. in favor of the American. Heavy losses are now being scored by English manufacturers on their shipments to China, and the trade returns for 1875 (not yet completed) will show a considerable decline in the value of the exports. At the same time that English exports are decreasing, American exports to China of cotton goods are increasing. It is barely possible that in the course of one or two years more America may ship one-third, perhaps one-half, of the cotton goods used in China of foreign manufacture.

The present condition of the American cotton goods market is more favorable for their export than at any time since 1860. The price of goods is so low from the various causes of cheap cotton, cheaper labor and decreased consumption in the home markets, and from the necessities of the numerous cotton mills, which lose more by stopping machinery than by meeting the market, that many descriptions of goods are lower than they were in 1860, and as the premium on gold lessens the export price, it will be seen that there are unusual opportunities to recover, in part, the markets of the East that were lost through the effects of the war on the prices of cotton and labor.

The Journal says that Mr. S. R. Kidder formerly of Vienna, was shot and instantly killed a short time ago at Town Hill, California, by a night watchman that guarded the flume on his claim. It seems that Mr. K. thought the watchman slept at his post, so one night he went to see for himself and crept along the flume, when he got a bullet in his brain, killing him on the spot. Mr. K. leaves an aged mother in Vienna. The deceased was about thirty-five years of age.

The annual report of the town of Paris shows that at the last assessment in the town it contained 671 polls, and a total valuation of $1,004,536. Tax committed for collection $12,332.11, being ten mills on a dollar. $[illegible] per scholar were expended for school purposes. During the year the town farm has been self-supporting, and has turned a balance into the treasury of $10.88, after paying the overseer's salary. The town has $600 in bonds, and $2800 in town notes to pay, and there are $3,825.91 due from 1874 taxes. There are $[illegible] in the treasury. Three of the oldest townsmen of Mercer living in the same neighborhood, and all within half a mile of each other, have died within two months as follows: John Gray died Dec. 7th, aged 84 years. Mr. Gray was born in the same town where he died and has always lived on the same farm and his father before him. He died instantly, while sitting in a chair before the stove, without any previous illness. John Frozell moved into town 78 years ago, and has lived on the same farm 68 years, where he died after an illness of only a few months. Charles Farrand died Feb. 2, aged 88 years. Mr. Farrand moved into town [illegible] years ago and has always owned the farm whereon he died, after being confined to the house only three days. The day he died he walked back and forth across the sitting-room several times. They were all worthy citizens and their community feel their loss.

Efforts are being made to form a reform club at Skowhegan. The meetings of Saturday night and Sunday were followed by another enthusiastic gathering at the High street church on Monday evening, when speeches were made by Messrs. Harmon and Billings of Auburn, and others of this section. Some thirty additional names were obtained to the iron-clad pledge, and a large number to the general one.

OUR CANDIDATE.

FOR PRESIDENT OF THE UNITED STATES,

HON. JAMES G. BLAINE.

Subject to the action of the Republican National Convention.

Republican National Convention, 1876.

The next Union Republican National Convention for the nomination of candidates for President and Vice-President of the United States will be held in the CITY OF CINCINNATI, on WEDNESDAY, THE FOURTEENTH DAY OF JUNE, 1876, at 12 o'clock noon, and will consist of delegates from each State equal to twice the number of its Senators and Representatives in Congress, and of two delegates from each organized Territory and the District of Columbia.

In calling the conventions for the election of delegates, the committees of the several States are recommended to invite all Republican electors, and all other voters, without regard to past political differences or previous party affiliations, who are opposed to reviving sectional issues, and desire to promote friendly feeling and permanent harmony throughout the country by maintaining and enforcing all the constitutional rights of every citizen, including the full and free exercise of the right of suffrage without [illegible] ation and without [illegible] fraud, who are in favor of [illegible] tinued prosecution [illegible] punishment of all [illegible] dishonesty, and of an economical admin [illegible] of the Government by honest, faithful [illegible] ble officers, who are in favor of making [illegible] forms in government as experience may fr [illegible] to time suggest, who are opposed to im [illegible] credit of the na [illegible] tion by depreciating any [illegible] ligations, and in favor of sustaining in eve [illegible] the national faith and financial honor, wh [illegible] hat the common school system is the nur [illegible] merican liberty, and should be maintain [illegible] lately free from sectarian control, who b [illegible] t, for the promo [illegible] tion of these e [illegible] the Government should continue to be co [illegible] those who adhere to the principles of 1776 [illegible] port them as incorporated in the Constit [illegible] d the laws, and who are in favor of recognizing and strengthening the fundamental principle of National Unity in this Centennial Anniversary of the birth of the Republic.

E. D. MORGAN, Chairman.
WM. E. CHANDLER, Secretary,
Republican National Committee.
Washington, January 13, 1876.

SECRETARY BELKNAP IMPEACHED.

It is but the use of a mild expression to say that the whole country has been shocked by the intelligence from Washington announcing disclosures of the official malfeasance of Gen. W. W. Belknap, Secretary of War. The summary of the reports given elsewhere, shows that the Secretary's resignation was accepted yesterday, and sets forth the facts upon which his impeachment has been demanded in the House. The statements telegraphed would seem to leave no room for doubt as to the authenticity of the charges, but the high character hitherto borne by the Secretary, has rendered it almost impossible to credit the story of his corruption. By the report presented in the House it would seem impossible for the accused to break the force of the circumstantial and positive charges against him, and still, as he has expressed a desire to be heard, he is entitled to the benefit of any statement which he can make. In the first shock of such an impeachment of the integrity of a high official, and with but a mere outline of the circumstances of the case, comment is necessarily restricted to the expression of astonishment and grief that one who achieved a glorious record as a soldier, who has been honored by the President with his confidence and high position, has brought this humiliation upon the country.

It would be affectation to deny that the Republican party, in the councils of whose administration Gen. Belknap was given high station by the favor of the Chief Magistrate, will most keenly feel this dishonoring of their confidence, and the opposition reports attest the "inexorable" determination manifested by the Republicans of the committee to refuse any shielding or temporizing with the guilt. We are, as yet, at a loss to account for the frailty of a man who seemed so frank and sturdy as Gen. Belknap, and it is yet to be seen whether he was led astray by feminine influence, as some portions of the testimony would indicate, or voluntarily entered upon a course of trafficking with official favors. The wife who suggested the transaction has been dead for several years, and we can but appreciate the agony which impelled the unfortunate man to appeal for any punishment of himself which would keep dishonor from the grave. It is a sad affair in all its aspects and one which affords a poor subject for partisan exultation over a conspicuous example of human frailty.

But partisanship is a ready huckstering to an event having a moral rather than political significance, and those who were loudest and longest in defending the bold and gigantic robberies of Tweed and his confederates, will open in full cry over this welcome news to them of a Republican's misdoings. Already such a demagogue as Clymer, of Pennsylvania, has affected to be overcome with emotion in referring to this case as unparalleled in history, and followed up his pathos by charging the Republicans of the whole country with sharing the culpability. To cool the ardor of those politicians who would trade upon a national misfortune for party advantage, we will suggest that they need not go far back in the history of their own party to find something more than a parallel to the offense of Secretary Belknap. We refer them to the very last Democratic administration in this country, that of James Buchanan, in which the Secretary of War, James B. Floyd, not only conspired to betray the Government into the hands of traitors by dispersing the army to the remotest points and by transferring over 100,000 muskets and many cannon to the South on the eve of rebellion, but who was also indicted by the Grand Jury of the District of Columbia for complicity in the abstraction of $870,000 in bonds from the Interior Department in 1860, and failed to appear for trial.

It will be well, also, for the Confederate Democracy, who are inclined to jubilate, over the downfall of a distinguished Unionist soldier, to remember that while Secretary Belknap's malfeasance will find no defenders in the Republican party, John B. Floyd was rewarded at once in the "model Confederacy" by appointment as a Brigadier General.

Fortunately the Democrats cannot convince the people of this country that their party is honest simply by pointing to exceptional cases of Republican weakness or venality, whose exposure promptly meets with condemnation and punishment.

THE WHIG hoists the name, this week, of Hon. James G. Blaine as our candidate for President of the United States. Designate him as Maine's candidate, Brother Boutelle. No Republican will say you, Nay.—Ellsworth American.

We use the pronoun in its plural sense and with the broadest application. The hearty support of Mr. Blaine in different sections has already made him more than the candidate of a single State. Maine's candidate is our candidate and we believe he will also be the Nation's choice.

BEN HILL AGAIN.

In the debate on opening the pension list to disloyal persons the other day Ben Hill broke loose again, and in spite of the attempts of Northern Democrats to restrain him made a violent exhibition of his belligerency and hatred of the loyal North. Even so quiet and conservative a gentleman as Hon. George F. Hoar, had his patience exhausted by the rebel bravado, and administered a most telling rebuke. He said he was tired of being lectured by persons who would have been gibbeted in any other country in the world, and thought that Hill and his confreres could afford to be a trifle more modest. He scathingly reviewed Hill's course in the amnesty debate and reminded him of his authorship of the infamous "black flag resolutions" for the massacre of captured Union soldiers. His punishment of the Georgia barbarian was terrific in its calm, but withering severity. He then turned to Sunset Cox and reminded the House that he had outraged all proprieties of debate, assailing members with such epithets as "hyena, etc., utterances which excited the disgust of the civilized world wherever the telegraph extends, and yet the Democratic side of the House had seized the first opportunity to place the author of those utterances in the Speaker's chair as their representative of the order, dignity and decency of the American Congress."

Mr. Hoar's manly protest will be applauded by all for whose opinion he would care, throughout the Union.

HANDSOME COMMENDATION.

[From the Kennebec Journal.]

Some of the papers have spoken of Mr. Powers of Houlton as the leader on the floor of the House at the late session of the Legislature. That position he undoubtedly occupied, in fact as well as in name. He proved himself an able debater and a sagacious leader, fully competent to cope with the "big guns" of the opposition. He made no mistakes in policy, no blunders in discussion, and was a very valuable man to the State at large as well as to his locality and party. The Argus sneered somewhat at his leadership, but the best men on the Democratic side had a wholesome respect for him, as was evident to all who watched the proceedings of the House.

POLITICAL AND PERSONAL.

The Troy, N. Y. Whig says "About two-thirds of the Republican voters in this State greatly prefer Blaine to Conkling as a Presidential candidate. For this reason an unpledged delegation has been suggested as the best way to allow the popular feeling to be represented without any disrespect to Mr. Conkling."

Blaine ideas seem to be plenty out in Michigan also. A canvass of the State officers and employes of Lansing, shows 58 for Blaine, 6 for Bristow, 1 for Morton, 2 for Conkling. The officers are all for Blaine.—N. Y. Tribune.

In a lecture to the inflationists the N. Y. World makes the significant conclusion "There is no present reason to suppose that Ohio or Pennsylvania can be recovered from the Republican party this fall."

As the tussle of these wrestles along among the Presidential candidates it very much looks as though James G. Blaine, all the way from Maine, will be the survivor of the harvest and the nominee by acclamation of the Cincinnati Convention.—Lincoln (Neb.) Journal.

Mr. Blaine invited a distinguished party to meet Mr. George William Curtis at dinner in Washington last week.

Mr. Louis J. Jennings terminated his connection with the New York Times on Saturday. Mr. George Jones, the publisher, does not propose to do the editorial management as has been asserted, and says the paper has never had any one writer who has been known as "the editor." Mr. John Foord, a gentleman who has been connected with the Times staff during nearly the whole of Mr. Jenning's connection with the paper, and is one of the ablest, best informed and most painstaking of its writers, will succeed the latter.

The Baltimore American believes that the Republicans of Maryland are almost a unit in favor of the nomination of Mr. Blaine for President. It says there is also a friendly feeling toward Mr. Bristow, and probably the ticket of "Blaine and Bristow" would meet with general acceptance with Maryland Republicans.

The Albany Journal has been counting up the fruits of three months of political Democratic ascendancy and finds these results. "Eighty rebel officers in Congress; the committees in rebel hands; the arrogant assertion of the rebel spirit on the floor of Congress; the presentation of a host of rebel claims; the development of rebel Democratic revolution in several States, the encouragement of petty rebel insults on every side; the danger of a new edition of the rebel currency."

The Tribune says: "A great many Republican papers urge the nomination of Secretary Bristow; a great many more urge the nomination of Mr. Blaine; some speak for Mr. Washburne, and some for other candidates."

The Boston Traveller states that "several members of the Advisory Council visited Mrs. Moulton had a free conversation with her, and elicited from her this admission, which she gave without hesitation, viz: that she inferred what she said relating to Mr. Beecher's adultery, and that he, Mr. Beecher, never used the word adultery in conversing with her. When he spoke of the 'great sorrow of his life,' (meaning, as the delegates said, the breaking up of Mr. Tilton's family) she inferred that he meant adultery, and stated to the delegates, some of whom, as lawyers, cross-questioned her very closely, that all her statements about the guilt of Mr. Beecher were matters of inference." So much for what was claimed to be the most important evidence against Mr. Beecher.

The New York Times notices that we have the unmitigated style of Bourbons down this way. It remarks.

The Democrats of Bangor, Me., asked Congressman Ben. H. Hill, of Georgia, to come and help them celebrate Washington's Birthday. He did not go, but wrote them that the Southern people "with unprecedented unanimity are ready and willing to meet the Northern people in a spirit of amity, deference, and concession." He also said: "A people who were brave enough to fight for their convictions will never be mean enough to surrender their honor and confess themselves criminals. The confession, if made, would be false."

The N. Y. Tribune says: "The opinions of members of the Advisory Council, expressed since their return to their homes, are, even more favorable to Plymouth Church and its pastor than were the official utterances. The worthlessness of Mr. Bowen's disclosures impressed itself on the delegates, and the attempt to lock the doors when his testimony ended is shown to have been at most a trivial affair, possibly intended as a sort of practical joke."

DISTRICT CONVENTION. The First District Republican Convention to choose delegates to the National Republican Convention is called to meet at Saco, May 26th, at 12 o'clock—the basis of representation being that of past years on the gubernatorial vote of 1874.

Dr. Lighthill gives this timely notice, that his present professional visit at Bangor must come to a close, as above stated, in order to save useless regrets. He flatters himself that he has given proofs in this city, as well as elsewhere, that he is fully able to perform all he promises to do, and all those wishing to procure his services, or obtain his advice, will now call on him as early as possible. Dr. Lighthill has devoted his undivided attention to the Treatment, Relief and Cure of Deafness, Catarrh and diseases of the Eye, Ear and Air passages for the past 20 years. For the last 10 years he has been favorably known to the people of Maine, through his remarkably successful practice in Augusta and other cities in the State.

This extensive experience enables him to tell on the first examination generally, whether a case is curable or not, and no case will be accepted by him that does not present strong evidence that it is amenable to successful treatment. A personal examination is necessary in every case, hence those not able to come, need not trouble themselves to write for further information. Dr. Lighthill's Treatment is entirely original, perfectly painless, can, in most cases, be applied by the patients themselves efficiently, at their own homes, and it will not prevent them from pursuing their usual avocations. Many cases can be relieved by one operation.

References to parties successfully treated by Dr. Carl B. Lighthill in Bangor, will be cheerfully given by him on application at the Penobscot Exchange, Bangor.

The Impeachment Proceedings against General Belknap

When the House rose from Committee of the Whole Mr Clymer of Pa presented [illegible] resolution of impeachment against Wm W Belknap, late Secretary of War, for high crimes and misdemeanors in office. He asked permission of the House to make a report from the Committee on Expenditures in the War Department. It was [illegible] this committee [illegible] evidence of the [illegible] of General Belknap that [illegible] before the House [illegible] at 11 o'clock a letter of [illegible] was presented to the committee [illegible] the resignation of the Secretary [illegible] at 10.20 this forenoon [illegible] unanimously reported [illegible] that W W Belknap late Secretary of War be dealt with according to the law of the land and to that end submit [illegible] taken [illegible] together with the several statements [illegible] thereto attached, and also a report of the proceedings of the committee [illegible] the investigation of the subject [illegible] the following resolution:

Resolved That Wm W Belknap late Secretary of War be impeached of high crimes and misdemeanors.

Resolved That the testimony in the case of W W Belknap late Secretary of War be referred to the Judiciary Committee with instructions to prepare and report without unnecessary delay suitable articles of impeachment of said Wm W Belknap, late Secretary of War.

Resolved That a committee of five members of the House be appointed and instructed to proceed immediately to the bar of the Senate, and there impeach W W Belknap late Secretary of War in the name of the people of the United States of high crimes and misdemeanors when in office, and to inform that body that formal articles of impeachment will in due time be presented, and to request the Senate to take such order in the premises as they may deem appropriate.

Mr Clymer then proceeded to read the testimony of Caleb P Marsh of No. 30 West 47th st. New York, one of the witnesses subpoenaed. He stated that in the summer of 1870 on the return of himself and wife from Long Branch Mrs Belknap (now dead) and Mrs Bower visited them by invitation. Mrs Belknap was ill during that visit and he supposed in consequence of kindness shown her she felt under some obligation for she asked him why he did not apply for a post tradership on the frontier, some of which, she said, were very lucrative, and that if he wanted one she would ask the Secretary for him. Witness said "I do not remember saying that if I had a valuable post of that kind that I would remember her, but I do remember her saying something like this: 'If I can prevail upon the Secretary of War to give you a post, you must be careful not to say anything to him about presents, for a man once offered him $10 000 for a tradership of this kind and he told him that if he did not leave the office he would kick him down stairs.'"

Afterwards Mrs Belknap sent him word to come to Washington and going there she advised him to apply for the post at Fort Sill which he did and the Secretary said he would appoint him if he furnished the proper recommendatory letters. Mr or Mrs Belknap told him, the then trader, John S. Evans was an applicant and he (Marsh) should see him as he would lose largely on his buildings and merchandise if the place was taken from him. Witness saw Evans which resulted in an agreement that he (Evans) should hold the place and pay Marsh a bonus of $15 000, but this was afterward reduced to $12,000. The first remittance came to him, probably in November of 1870 and he sent half of it to Mrs. Belknap. After the death of Mrs. Belknap he began to send the payments to the Secretary and has continued to do so up to the present time.

In answer to questions witness estimated that he had received in all some $40,000 from Evans, half of which had been disposed of as stated. He had sometimes paid the money to the Secretary in person in New York, but had preserved no receipts or letters from him. He had written frequently to the Secretary concerning the business at Fort Sill, but had never mentioned the contract with Evans to him but once. Had never shown the contract to him or any one until presented to the Committee.

Witness further stated that he came to Washington by subpoena of the House Feb 23 and went to the house of Secretary Belknap, who advised him to stay and appear before the Committee. The Secretary was much engaged and he discussed the matter with Mrs. Belknap, who urged him to make a statement which would account for the money transactions as regular and proper. He had suffered much mental distress and told the Secretary that his own witness must fly the country or Belknap would be ruined. Belknap besought him to stay as his going would certainly ruin him. Witness left for New York, however, and consulted his attorney and prepared to leave the country to avoid exposing the Secretary or perjuring himself but there he was prevailed upon by Dr Tomlinson, brother of the late Mrs Belknap to remain and try to make a statement which would prevent exposure. With this he went on to describe his visit to Washington and appearance before the Committee.

At the close of the reading Mr Clymer addressed the House, saying that the report [illegible] will for long years constitute a record of official corruption and crime such as there is no parallel for in our own history or in that of any other country that I know of. After some further remarks of a political character, Mr Clymer moved the previous question on the adoption of the resolutions.

Mr Kasson of Iowa appealed to Mr Clymer to give an opportunity for some [illegible] questions to be made before asking the previous question on a matter of so [illegible]

Mr Clymer regretted that he could not [illegible] his friend (several Democrats [illegible]) [illegible] and for the reason that his colleague on the committee desired to be heard after the previous question was seconded.

Mr Kasson—All we want is to say that there will be the right to oppose it [illegible] be [illegible] and [illegible]

Clymer—I decline to yield and demand the previous question.

Kasson—Does the gentleman expect the House to-night after 6 o'clock and without this report being printed to vote on these resolutions when even the impeachability of the officer at present [illegible] to be considered by the House.

Mr. Clymer—After the previous question has been ordered I will yield half an hour to members of the Committee who are on the other side of the House.

After some further discussion the previous question was seconded and Mr. Clymer yielded the floor to his colleague on the Committee Mr Robbins of North Carolina who thought the resignation of the Secretary did not affect the impeachment proceedings.

Mr Bass of N Y, another member of the committee questioned the statement of the chairman, Clymer, as to this case having no parallel and said he would not have it [illegible] in order to [illegible] of our own parallel for it, but that he could [illegible] compared with which this day [illegible] the driven snow. He said [illegible] that the mere statement of the case as stated by the testimony was sufficient to justify every member to vote for the resolution presented.

Mr Lamar of Miss. inquired from Bass his opinion as to the impeachability of a resigned officer.

Mr Bass replied that the English authorities seemed to maintain the jurisdiction of impeachment in such case, but that in this country it was an unadjudicated question and one that was not free from doubt, but his own best judgment was in favor of the right to impeach and to let the question be adjudicated by the Senate.

Mr Hoar said in this country the only judgment that could be rendered in an impeachment case was the removal from office and forever disqualification from holding office, but by the statutes a person guilty of such offences could be indicted, tried and sentenced by the criminal courts of the country. He protested against [illegible] in this matter without having the testimony printed; he thought such haste unworthy of this grave question [illegible] here to say so.

[Our report of House proceedings breaks off with statement that the Speaker appointed a committee to notify the Senate of the action of the House but does not give the names.]

A Great Excitement.

SECRETARY BELKNAP IMPEACHED.

CHARGES OF CORRUPTION IN OFFICE.

His Resignation Accepted

NEW YORK, March [illegible] The Sun says Secretary Belknap has been proved guilty of malfeasance in office. It says the Committee on Expenditures of the War Department will so report to the House to-day through the chairman Clymer.

The Outline of the Story

[illegible] as follows. Mr Marsh of New York city appeared yesterday before the Committee and testified that he procured of Mr Belknap, Secretary of War, a contract for certain post traderships at Fort Sill and [illegible] in the Southwest, for which he paid the wife of the Secretary $10 000 cash and continued to pay as long as he retained the contract some $6 000 per annum. He also testified to other frauds and corruptions on the part of the Secretary and produced records [illegible] evidence to substantiate every [illegible] He was subjected to a thorough examination but was not shaken in a single point.

An Alleged Confession

Yesterday afternoon, says the Sun, Secretary Belknap was summoned before the Committee and the evidence of Marsh read to him. He confessed that the statement was true and that he must submit to it. He however implored the Committee [illegible] to shield his wife from dishonor and [illegible] suppression of the most damaging proofs [illegible] pleading guilty to all but one [illegible] charging him with any other crime [illegible] record of corruption was [illegible] held, and at once tendered his resignation. Let [illegible] Republican members of the Committee (Mr Danford of Ohio and Mr Bl[air] of New York) were [illegible] inexorable [illegible] the committee then adjourned till evening, when they again assembled to consider whether they should allow the Secretary to resign in[stead] [illegible] the record to the House. After a short conference it was determined [illegible] and that the Committee will to-day report a resolution of impeachment.

The Statement Given in the Times

The Times has a similar story of Marsh's evidence but [illegible] Secretary Belknap neither admitted nor denied the truth of the testimony. It says the result of the exposures must be followed by the immediate resignation of the Secretary and in[v]olve [illegible] would seem to involve [illegible]

The World's Despatch

[illegible] despatches [illegible] to Belknap [illegible] and says that at [illegible] o'clock this morning the committee [illegible] to the House to-day.

An Interview with the President

WASHINGTON, March 2. The reports as to the alleged malfeasance by Secretary Belknap were strengthened this morning by the fact that about 10 o'clock Secretary Belknap had an interview with the President in company with Bristow and Chandler and Senators Morton and Morrill of Vermont. The subject discussed involved the resignation of Secretary Belknap. The latter left the Executive Mansion [illegible] Secretary Chandler [illegible] the War Department. It is thought [illegible] Belknap [illegible] resign to [illegible] the pleasure of the President.

What a Member of the Committee Says

WASHINGTON March 2. A Republican member of the Committee on Expenditures of the War Department is authority for stating that Secretary Belknap has been before the Committee, but is to be examined this afternoon. The same authority states that the President has accepted Belknap's resignation. A report on the subject will be made to the House to-day if the Committee are able to finish taking testimony before the adjournment.

The Theme of Conversation

The report of the testimony implicating Secretary Belknap in the matter of the sale of the office of post trader at Fort Sill is the theme of general comment everywhere in this city. General Belknap resigned. It is stated at the White House that the resignation was brought by [illegible] but the exact words of the President's reply has not yet been obtained. This resignation [illegible] made [illegible] War Department [illegible] application to be explained to the committee and [illegible] therefore request to be allowed to make a statement.

Intense Astonishment

The discovery of this circumstance in General Belknap's administration of the War Department occasions most intense surprise, and the cabinet officers and officials of all grades declare their absolute astonishment. Throughout the city there has been [illegible] regarding the subject of the impeachment of the ex Secretary for corruption and opinions are divided among cabinet officers and others as to whether that can be had after the resignation of office. The preponderance of opinion, however, is that it could be. The Attorney General has said he considered [illegible] was not prepared to give an opinion, though it has not been officially asked for unless after the examination. Several friends of Belknap called upon him to-day, but he had nothing to say except that he desired to make a statement before the committee.

The Successor, etc

There are already rumors as to the appointment of a successor, but nothing is said about it at the White House. It is also rumored this afternoon that the President is inclined to withdraw his acceptance of the resignation to await an investigation of the charges against Belknap.

Acting Secretary of War Appointed

The President to-day appointed Secretary Robeson Acting Secretary of War.

GREAT BRITAIN

The Boston Forger

LONDON, March 2. Winslow, the Boston forger, was brought up in the Bow street Court to-day and remanded till noon to-morrow. The American legation made an application to the foreign office, but there has been a slight delay and Sir Thomas Henry, Chief Magistrate at the Bow street Police Court has not yet received the notice required under the extradition act of this formal application. The delay will probably be explained by the necessity of the foreign office to an examination submitted by the American legation.

The Examination of Winslow

Rather more people were present at the examination of Winslow than on former occasions. Sir Thomas Henry asked the prisoner if he had a solicitor? Winslow said he did not desire a solicitor. He did not wish to contest the case at all. He would be glad to waive everything and be only too happy to go home to-morrow. Sir Thomas said, "I understood Mr Wantner would appear for the defence at the request of the prisoner's friends." Detective Greyham explained that the prisoner's friends at Boston had telegraphed for Wantner to appear in behalf of the prisoner but the latter did not wish to have a solicitor. Albion P. Dearborn, a detective officer of Boston, was sworn. He produced the papers consisting of the indictment found by the Grand Jury of Suffolk County, Massachusetts, containing 14 counts for forgery and 7 for uttering to the amount of $40,000, a bench warrant issued by the Massachusetts authorities for the arrest of Winslow and the depositions of various persons of Boston, whose names had been forged. He also produced a warrant signed by President Grant and countersigned by Hamilton Fish, Secretary of State, authorizing him, (Dearborn) to convey the prisoner to America if he was committed. Mr Dearborn replying to Col. Cheesebrough said he knew the prisoner by sight, he also knew various persons signing the affidavit. The documents were then handed to Winslow, who declined to ask any questions of Dearborn. Sir Thomas Henry asked if the documents bore the seal of the Secretary of State and Col. Cheesebrough replied that they did. They were then read. During the reading Winslow sat looking downwards and seemed much depressed, but otherwise evinced no emotion. He seems to have suffered much from confinement being very sallow and gaunt. When obliged to speak his voice was husky and his tone lower than a week ago. After the documents were read Sir Thomas explained their purport to Winslow and asked him if he understood them. Winslow replied that he did. Sir Thomas then said the indictment and bench warrant were sufficient grounds for committing him. If a Grand Jury in London had found a similar indictment against the prisoner charged here he should commit him immediately but in an extradition case it was necessary to have evidence that the Government requiring extradition had made a formal application to the English Government through, I understand, Sir Thomas continued, the American legation at the instruments to the foreign office yesterday. I have not received any information from any foreign or home office therefore I think best to remand you until to-morrow. The prisoner asked to be allowed to see his family who were in the private room of the court as they were last Wednesday week. Sir Thomas [illegible] Winslow was [illegible] explaining some ordinary business transaction.

The delay at the opening of the court was at the wish of the American legation so that there might be no impression that the prisoner was unfairly treated or taken advantage of in the absence of a solicitor [illegible] requiring the remand [illegible] the American legation [illegible] the Foreign Office for extradition. The Foreign Office examine the papers and forward them to the Home Office [illegible] notifies the magistrate and he commits him to [illegible] extradition.

Mrs Winslow

seems less depressed than on Wednesday. She will probably go home on the same vessel with her husband. [illegible] the authorities of Boston left the question of the [illegible] of the family [illegible] to Dearborn's discretion. They pay [illegible] expenses [illegible] There [illegible] interest among the spectators [illegible] who were not directly connected with it.

ART ASSOCIATION

Lecture on Glass by Dr A. C. Hamlin

There was a very large attendance at the meeting of the Art Association last evening. The [illegible] Quartette [illegible] Dr A. C. Hamlin delivered a very instructive [illegible] of which the following is a [illegible]

The lecturer stated that the five [illegible] glass was one of the [illegible] discoveries of man and which [illegible] civilization [illegible] and [illegible] importance of all.

He also [illegible] that the limits of [illegible] the vast [illegible] and [illegible] metals of precious stones.

He quoted ancient writers to prove the antiquity of the manufacture of glass and mention[ed] several beautiful [illegible] now to be seen in the Museums of Europe. [illegible] were exhibited [illegible] posed to be four thousand years old [illegible] the beautiful Portland vase [illegible] two thousand years [illegible] Cathedral [illegible] of unknown age.

Interesting descriptions of these remarkable productions were [illegible] the lecturer.

The wonderful collection of glass vessels found lately in the tombs of the ancient Phoenicians [illegible] the imitation of the gems by the ancients was discussed and some of the examples quoted which led Winkelmann [illegible] the two best critics of the last century, to declare that the ancients in several respects brought the manufacture of glass to a much higher point of perfection than ourselves—that they had superior skill and finer natural taste than the modern artist.

Modern glass-making may be said to date from the 11th century, when the Venetians received and gave protection to the artists escaping from the wreck of Rome. As early as the 13th century the art of glass was carried to very high degrees of excellence by the Venetians, and they had complete control of the trade.

The process was kept a secret and the workmen guarded by very stringent laws—emigration being forbidden.

During the days of adversity Venice lost her monopoly, and her skilled labor emigrated to Bohemia and France and found there works which are now famous in those countries.

Venice again sought to establish herself in the art but failed and her secrets were lost. In 1840 Dr Sabratt, a lawyer of Venice, determined to restore the manufacture of glass in Venice to its former excellence, and so great has been his perseverance and good fortune that most of the lost secrets have been recovered—even that of reticulated glass and the rich sapphire blue.

The Venetian artists Sequso and the brothers Barorier, are thought to be the most skillful of those in Europe.

Dr Sabratt now offers to reproduce any of the famous masterpieces of the middle ages, both in form, color and even weight.

The famous mirror presented to Marie de Medici by the Senate of Venice, was described and compared with the splendid mirror fifteen feet high and twelve feet broad, exhibited lately at Paris.

The different methods of glass were explained, and how little machinery was required to produce the delicate vessels of glass.

Genius being the necessary requisite the imitations of the gems were described at length, and the lecturer pronounced them to be triumphs of human skill, and objected to the application of the term paste as one of vulgarity and derision. He explained how the term paste became changed from its primary meaning, and thought it better to class the glass imitations as "bravet gems."

La Bastins method of toughening glass was discussed and illustrated by specimens and also by Prince Rupert's drops. The lecturer believed that a new era in the manufacture and adaptation of glass was about to take place in consequence of this and other late inventions.

In speaking of the vast benefits conferred upon mankind by glass, he spoke of the telescope, the microscope, spectroscope, etc, and as he believed that the honors bestowed upon these instruments justly belonged to its invention, he discussed the importance of their discoveries and their effect upon civilization.

Concerning the microscope he stated that it had carried our perceptions so far into the depths of Nature's mysteries as almost to reveal the problem of organic life—that it had enlarged the ideas of man concerning the Creator, and strengthened without mystifying the profound veneration which seems to be innate in human nature.

The results of the telescope were brought to mind and the spectroscope and its astounding performances discussed at some length. He spoke of the achievements of the spectroscope in physics, chemistry, astronomy, etc., and dwelt at some length upon the many astronomical problems that had been solved by means of it—problems which even the gigantic telescopes of to-day fail to reveal, for it is not in their power to show the composition of the sun, stars and nebulae.

A Reminiscence

HOW A CONGREGATION WERE SCALED.

Mr Editor: Once on a time long ago there used to be about the town an individual called Hate Evil Colson. He was a harmless fellow not exactly foolish, nor yet over wise. The good mothers of that day [used] his name as a bugaboo to frighten their little children into good behavior. If he were living to-day it is more than probable that he would find himself in an Insane Hospital in the wisdom of our city and of [illegible] but [illegible] the poor fellow is dead.

DR. [illegible] [S]CHENCK'S [S]TANDARD [REM]EDIES

The [illegible] are SCHENCK'S PULMONIC SYRUP, SCHENCK'S SEA WEED TONIC and SCHENCK'S MANDRAKE PILLS and [illegible] destroyed [illegible]

To these three medicines Dr J. H. Schenck of Philadelphia owes his [illegible] in the treatment of pulmonary diseases.

The Pulmonic Syrup ripens the morbid matter in the lungs; nature throws it off by an easy expectoration, for when the phlegm or matter is ripe a slight cough will throw it off, the patient has rest and the lungs begin to heal.

To enable the Pulmonic Syrup to do this, Schenck's Mandrake Pills and Schenck's Sea Weed Tonic must be freely used to cleanse the stomach and liver. Schenck's Mandrake Pills act on the liver, removing all obstructions, relax the gall bladder, the bile starts freely and the liver is soon relieved.

Schenck's Sea Weed Tonic is a gentle stimulant and alterative; the alkali of which it is composed mixes with the food and prevents souring. It assists the digestion by toning up the stomach to a healthy condition so that the food and the Pulmonic Syrup will make good blood, then the lungs heal and the patient will surely get well if care is taken to prevent fresh cold.

All who wish to consult Dr Schenck either personally or by letter, can do so at his principal office, corner of SIXTH and ARCH STS., Philadelphia every Monday.

Schenck's medicines are sold by all druggists throughout the country.
